To

Colonel Frank H. Fries,

of the Board of Trustees of Salem College,

with much respect and esteem, and in grateful appreciation of his constant interest, in all that pertains to the uplifting of the college, we, the Class of 1913-14, dedicate this tenth volume of

"Sights and Insights"

Sights and Insights

To the Young Ladies of the Graduating Class of 1914

THE fresh and beautiful pictures that the imagination paints of the future "in Youth's May Morning," are aglow with the tints of the springtime and radiant with blooming flowers; were it possible to hang only these pictures on memory's wall, what a bright and radiant collection it would be!

We know, however, that the real pictures that will hang in your memory, and the sweetest of them, too, will be painted in more subdued colors and more somber tints, the result of the maturer experiences of life. May we hope that in each may be seen an unmistakable atmosphere of true love and contentment, born of duties well conceived and performed and a conscience void of offence and at peace with all the world.

Should perchance shadows fall across some canvas, and dark clouds drift into the background, as they sometimes do in the case of some, let us hope that the rays of the setting sun may paint upon each the bright bow of promise and of hope, a foregleam of that celestial country, the beauties of which no eye has seen, the sweetness of whose music no ear has heard, and the glories of which no imagination has conceived.

Somewhere in this marvelous gallery, with its many interesting and valued pictures, will be a quiet corner with pictures peculiar to themselves, as sweet and as dear as any of the others. These will represent the days spent at your Alma Mater; here will be seen the familiar buildings and grounds of SALEM COLLEGE and grouped among them the clear and familiar forms and faces of loving companions and friends, among whom you will always be able to find yourself; the magic faculty of the painter adding peculiar and unfailing interest to the scene. Somewhere in this corner, or near at hand, will surely be found a copy of SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS, 1914—a reminder of these happy days, and in it this "foreword," in which the writer acknowledges with appreciation the honor that you have conferred upon him by admitting him into your charming and accomplished company.

Very sincerely,

F. H. FRIES.

Forewarning!

WE present this tenth volume of SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS to you, not as a realization of the staff's ideal, but as an effort toward that ideal. It represents hours, yes, many hours, of labor, but if it can help in any way toward making a better "Salem Spirit," we shall feel that our labor has not been in vain.

We have endeavored to portray a record of these, our last college days, and we trust that its pages may bring fond memories to those who have long ago passed from "dear old SALEM," and likewise to you, when the obscure haze of years transforms the careless pleasures of schooldays into golden memories.

SALEM COLLEGE

In the quaint old town of Salem, a hundred years and more,
 The daughters of our Southland have gathered precious store,
 And not alone the knowledge of chemicals
 and rays,
 Of classic lore, of Math, of Trig, of circles,
 years and days;
 But deeper lessons far than these, with richer wisdom fraught,
 They've stored away, for future use, by sage experience taught,
 The patient calls of duty, performed from day to day,
 The training of both mind and heart in wisdom's narrow way.

The simple pleasures, happy sports, which rounded out the time
 And made the busy months seem days,
 from breezy clime to chime—
 All these are mirrored clearly on mem'ry's
 pictured walls,
 Along with well-loved faces, thronging the
 lofty halls;
 The happy Christmas tide, the blessed
 Easter morn—
 When on the forming mind and heart
 eternal things were born—
 All these, and more than tongue can name,
 or busy finger write,
 Our grateful hearts to Salem shall willingly indite.

For countless homes in North and South
 have felt your peaceful charm;
 Have learned to love your sacred walls,
 where, safe from every harm,
 The well-beloved mother, the daughter, sister, wife,
 Have gained the highest knowledge in a world of sin and strife;
 Have gained, besides, the faithfulness, the
 ready hand and skill,
 The training that has stood the test of
 human good or ill;
 Have made that home the bidding-place
 whence love and influence flow
 In ever-widening circles as the ages come and go.

To your classic shades, O Salem! your children fondly turo,
 Amid the rushing tides of life, their hearts
 shall ever yearn!
 And as the passing years go by, so full of
 anxious care,
 Her forming influence still is felt, a benediction rare,
 A wreath of fragrant violets, with colors
 purple and white,
 We place on your devoted brow, with loving memories bright,
 And may your grateful children be your glory and your crown,
 Till time shall be no longer, and your sun
 shall ne'er go down,

E. A. LEHMAN.

IRENE ADAMS Altavista, Va.

*"Happy am I; from care I'm free,
Why aren't they all contented like me?"*

"RENY" is decidedly the slowest girl in our class. She is even behind when we start to meals—you would not thus express her actions when she partakes with the same degree of slowness. She is with the world, for she quietly laughs—sometimes (?).

Librarian H. L. S., 1913-14; Virginia Club; Marshal, 1911-12; Cotillion Club; Jolly Dozen; Red Ribbon Gossiper; Sour Grapes; Delta Sigma Delta.

MARGARET AGNES BLAIR Winston-Salem, N. C.

"Great thoughts, great feelings, came to her Like instincts, unawares."

MARGARET—one of our brainy girls. She seems greatly attracted by any object that is in the form of a book. Her delight outdoors is on the tennis court, where she shows great skill. However, if they disagree which side scores love, they retire and discuss it.

Secretary of Class, 1910-11; Historian of Class, 1913-14; Tar Heel Club.

Sights and Insights

FRANCES MARY BROWN. _____ Germantown, Pa.

"Charms strike the sight, but merit wins the soul."

"MOLLY"—or "Molly Make Believe"—has a fondness for the circus and newspapers, especially the Atlanta Journal. Usually seen putting things in order, and never is an article placed at a different angle or found in a new place.
Chaplain E. L. S., 1913-14; Basket-Ball Team, 1910-11, 1911-12.

HOPE COOLIDGE. _____ Detroit, Mich.

"The heart to conceive, the understanding to direct, or the hand to execute."

"Hoppy" is always in a hurry, from one class to another, expecting "something to turn up." She carries more hours than there are on the clock, and has good prospects of getting them off. For recreation, she is usually seen playing golf (??).

Sights and Insights

BLANCHE LUCILLE COX ASHEBORO, N. C.

*"She doeth little kindnesses
Which most leave undone, or despise."*

BLANCHE looks thin and good, and we are afraid that she is occasionally seen on her way to the classroom or to the postoffice. As we can not think of any other way that she could spend her time, we have come to the conclusion that she studies.

Class Poet, 1912-13; Class Poet, 1913-14; Secretary of E. L. S., 1913-14; Treasurer Y. W. C. A., 1913-14; Literary Editor of IVY, 1913-14; Tar Heel Club.

JULIA ELIZABETH CRAWFORD Nazareth, Pa.

"Silence speaks the best mind."

JULIA loves, reads, and thinks in German. Probably her mind was sent from Germany, but it was securely packed, for it is not even cracked. JULIA is one of the Rook fiends—usually found with cards at her table—or "in the hole."

Sights and Insights

RUTH CREDLE

Pantego, N. C.

*"Far may we search before we find
A heart so gentle and so kind."*

"RUFUS RAT" does like cheese just like other rats, but her chief taste, and one she cultivates, is that for sugar. Even in geometry class she always saw white cubes of clear crystals where the others only saw square figures. She is good and kind to all. Tar Heel Club.

LETTIE ELIZABETH CROUCH Winston-Salem, N. C.

"Not by years, but by disposition, is wisdom acquired."

LETTIE—one of our day scholars, who desires "much learning," and we are not sure, but think she is one of the few people who have their wishes gratified. She loves books like most girls love "Huyler's." She should know the entire contents of what she reads, too, for she takes it very slowly.

Class Vice-President, 1911-12; Class Historian, 1912-13; Tar Heel Club.

Sights and Insights

ELIZABETH DUNCAN.....

Raleigh, N. C.

*"A kind o' smily round the lips,
An' teary round the lashes."*

"LIB DUNCAN" is our popular SENIOR, and she well deserves the honor, for she can always entertain. Special graduate in Expression! She can imitate any person or thing she cares to. You should hear her sing one of her famous operas. She does not have stage fright, either.

Member of Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, 1912-13; Vice-President Y. W. C. A., 1913-14; Treasurer H. L. S., 1912-13; Vice-President H. L. S., 1913-14; President Dramatic Club, 1912-13; Basket-Ball Team, 1910-11, 1911-12; Literary Editor IVY, 1913-14; Delta Sigma Delta; Red Ribbon Gossiper; Cotillion Club; Sour Grapes; Jolly Dozen; Tar Heel Club.

KATIE NEWBERRY EBORN.....

Bath, N. C.

"Studious of ease, and fond of humble things."

KATIE is quiet and hard working. When she speaks, it's "stop, look and listen," for she means what she says. From the number she has secured, she will be well versed in ads, so in future years, in case she desires, she will be able to secure a choice husband, if that is the result of a good ad.

Class President, 1911-12; Critic H. L. S., 1913-14; Basket-Ball Team, 1910-11; Advertising Editor SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS, 1913-14.

Sights and Insights

GLADYS TURLEY GRANT.....Morristown, Tenn.

*"Age can not wither her, nor custom stale
Her infinite variety."*

"JACK" totally lacks the senses of "humor" and "song." She is considered one of the dullest SENIORS, who never sees the point to a joke, and if she does, she most likely sees the wrong point. She usually has a good supply of "high-class" vocal selections and stale jokes for every occasion; in fact, the same supply every time. Wonder why everybody loves "JACK" so?

Class Vice-President, 1913-14; Critic E. L. S., 1913-14; Literary Editor SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS; Ad Editor IVY, 1913-14; Sour Grapes; Delta Sigma Delta; Red Ribboner; Jolly Dozen.

ANNIE LEE GRISSOM.....Greensboro, N. C.

*"Who mixes reason with pleasure,
And wisdom with mirth."*

"GRIS," the retired fairy-story teller. After much deliberation, she has lately given up the occupation of talking for a useless thing like cooking. She is an authority on anything from sauces to shoestrings! She always greets you with a smile and a word of cheer.

Marshal, 1910-11; Club Editor SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS, 1913-14; Basket-Ball Team, 1911-12; Captain Basket-Ball Team, 1913-14; Jolly Dozen; Bandana Gang; Cotillion Club; Delta Sigma Delta; Tar Heel Club.

Sights and Insights

MARY GROGAN.....Winston-Salem, N. C.

*"I love tranquil solitude,
And such society as is quiet, wise, and good."*

MARY is usually seen with Catharine and herself. To us she is known as the "Tall Gold-Dust Twin." She does good work, too; that is, in the studio and the classroom. As she is a day pupil, we can not speak for her elsewhere—but we have no doubts. If you want your likeness drawn, she can do it, "good and proper."
Class Secretary, 1913-14; Tar Heel Club.

LUCY HANES.....Winston-Salem, N. C.

"A countenance in which did meet Sweet records, promises as sweet."

LUCY is the SENIOR we see—with envious eyes—getting out of her car as we go to chapel every morning (that is, if the exercises are late). She usually takes home stacks of books—books diminutive and books of preposterous size—and her marks prove she does not ride all the time. She has the proper class spirit!
Vice-President of Class, 1911-12; Tar Heel Club.

Sights and Insights

DOROTHY HOLT HADLEY

Siler City, N. C.

"There's no wisdom like frankness."

Has been classed as a "professional SENIOR stringer." Her spare minutes—and she has many of them—are spent either "loafing" or "dating" with one of her many ardent admirers. However, we have always found her a genial classmate, and ready to lend her aid on all occasions.

Class Prophet, 1913-14; Basket-Ball Team, 1910-11; Vice-President E. L. S., 1913-14; Tar Heel Club.

LUCY MAY HADLEY

Mt. Airy, N. C.

"As though a rose should shut and be a bud again."

Full of tact and diplomacy, agreeable, and loved by all. "LITTLE LUCY" always puts in the right word at the right time. A little dignified for one of so few years. She is quite heartless, and does not seem to mind this accusation in the least.

President H. L. S., 1913-14; Secretary Y. W. C. A., 1913-14; Bandana Gang; Cotillion; Business Manager SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS, 1913-14; Tar Heel Club; "Evils-De."

Sights and Insights

MARY ADELE HORTON..... Winston-Salem, N. C.

"Her very frowns are fairer far Than smiles of other maidens are."

MARY is a true and real candidate for pleasure. She enjoys life, too. Still, she practices the old habit of studying. She mixes work with pleasure. MARY seems to be on good terms with the world, and the world with her. We only know her in the classroom, but have not the slightest reason to doubt it.
Vice-President of Class, 1913-14; Tar Heel Club.

ELIZABETH SLOAN HYMAN..... New Berne, N. C.

*"The very room, 'cause she came in,
Seemed warm from floor to ceiling."*

MABEL MAHONEY LANCASTER

— Pauline, S. C.

"An open-hearted maiden, pure and true."

MABEL, our goal thrower, worked up quite a "rep" on the basket-ball field the past two years, but will probably live it down. She never starts anything she can not finish, and finish it with all her might. Usually attracted by any sign of the National Bisquit Company—especially if there is no broken seal on the box.

History of the Class of 1914

IN our studies this year we have discovered that some modern evolutionists claim and try to prove that man is descended—or ascended—from monkeys. While we do not credit this belief, there must be some truth in the theory itself, for you have before you a set of living illustrations. You may perceive in our class real, live, full-fledged SENIORS, in all our development and perfection. Yet, in spite of this, there is a tradition that in the dim and distant past the originals of these completed products were poor, lowly and verdant Freshmen. We do not accept the tradition, but if there were a record it would indubitably establish the doctrine of evolution, and bring hope and encouragement to each succeeding Freshman class. The tradition claims that:

On September 14, 1910, our class met for the first time as members of the collegiate department. We plunged into our work with the energy which became characteristic of us, especially after Miss Sallie's reiterated references to "bull dog" tenacity. We have always been a class who held on to what we considered our rights, and one of those has been to make a noise in the world upon all occasions.

We must have done so as Freshmen, for our beloved Botany teacher on one memorable morning objected to our coming into the class like "ruffians." We may possibly have gone into that fatal laboratory in a manner not quite befitting young ladies, but certain it is that we always came out in a subdued and lamb-like manner.

The favorite (?) diversions of our Freshman days were our cherished Botany walks. I am sure we will never forget how we were dragged across hills and ditches, forced to test the flavor of bitter and unknown weeds, and made to prove by careful analysis that a roadside daisy could by no means be a full-blown American Beauty.

The first basket-ball game in which our team participated was scheduled for Thanksgiving Day, so with the usual impatience of Freshmen we began collecting yells beforehand. Here again our laudable desire to "make a noise" received no encouragement, for each innocent yell was gone over and corrected by a self-appointed committee composed of our Botany teacher, who was also our class teacher. Each of our favorites was ruthlessly discarded, and we were directed to express our sentiments of joy and sorrow in the words "one, two, three, four" upon all occasions. To this we did not adhere, for during the game we gave vent to yells of derision when a good play was made by our opponents. It was of no avail, as we retired from the field defeated, but we were happy in the fact that we had outyelled every other class in school. Our enthusiasm was not even damped when we were taken to task for having given voice to other yells besides the numerical one.

During the basket-ball game and afterwards we remained loyal to our colors of purple and white; to our flower, the violet; and to our motto: "Finis Laborem Coronat."

We hope that the end crowned the toil. When, in February, our English teacher, Miss Grace Siewers, calmly requested us to write a poem modeled on Poe's "Raven" consternation reigned supreme, and the looks on our faces were black as the wings of the bird itself. Pleading was of no avail; the thing must be done, so we passed a gloomy week, surrounded by rhyming dictionaries and books of synonyms, and finally laid our products on our teacher's desk in the fond belief that we had done enough for one year. Not so, alas, for soon we were required to compose a sonnet in the most approved form. This was even worse, but we survived, and soon were engaged in preparations for our class picnic.

Our Botany teacher wished to take us to the fertilizer factory, thinking that it would be a pleasant spot to disport ourselves. We were in despair, for not one of us dared object, so we fled for aid to some of our SENIOR friends, and, acting on their advice, appointed a committee to interview our presiding genius on the subject. The delegation was successful, and on a fine spring morning we set out for Flat Rock in quest of happiness. We did not find it, however, for the lunch gave out, and the most elevating amusement we could discover was pounding on our plates with bones, while standing in line to be served with cake. We came home early, a tired and disgusted set of girls. Soon we revived, however, and threw ourselves heart and soul into preparations for our first Commencement, welcoming the time when we would leave the last vestige of our "greenness" behind us. The occasion passed off happily, and we spent a blissful summer, rejoicing in the fact that at last we were Sophomores.

As we look back on our Sophomore year, the part of our work which stands out most clearly is the frequent English papers which Miss Mickle made us write. They had to be handed in about twice a week, it seemed to us, and on subjects ranging from the "Use of Fairies in Literature" to an original discussion of whether or not Hamlet was really mad.

If ever a class was made to work, we certainly were, for we were crammed with so many Latin rules, Chemistry experiments, and trips to gas works and ice plants, that we had very little brain matter left over for long and complicated problems in Trigonometry. The only rift in the clouds of learning was when Miss Chitty would allow us to have conjugation matches. Then we lined the walls and repeated "Amavissem, I should have loved; Amaturus erit, he will be about to love," until the sole fact of which we were perfectly sure was that we did not love Latin. It was with fear and trembling that we made ready for our annual picnic, remembering our experience of the year before, but this time it was very different. Miss Sallie Shaffner chaperoned the class to Oldtown, the supply of lunch was ample, and at the end of the day we separated with three cheers for our teacher, and the firm conviction that it was one of the pleasantest outings we had ever enjoyed.

When we returned from our long vacation to enter Junior Class we found new duties and new teachers awaiting us. Then, first, we recited to Bishop Rondthaler, whose sweet and ennobling influence we will always feel to have been one of the strongest forces of our college course. Miss Lehman, too, taught us for the first time, and Miss Chitty continued to instruct us in the idioms of the Latin language. Mr. Starr also became one of our favorite teachers, creating in us a genuine love for the beautiful masterpieces of American literature, and making each member of the class feel that he was a personal friend, and sincerely interested in her progress. The dreaded laboratory ceased to hold such terrors for us, and our class teacher, Miss Lou, guided us with infinite skill through the complicated mazes of Analytical Geometry.

Our Junior year was not all happiness, however, for the diverse opinions of Benjamin Franklin and the "drawings" in John Woolman's mind created painful disturbances in our intellects, and in Physics we learned the meaning of "work" in more ways than the scientific definition implies.

The usual interclass basket-ball games took place on Thanksgiving Day, when our team gathered all the laurels, defeating the SENIORS and Sophomores, and winning the school championship. In our ecstasy, we bore our captain, Mabel Lancaster, around the field in triumph until she begged us to stop. That unexpected victory has brightened the whole remainder of our course, and we expect to be always remembered as the "Class that won."

Sights and Insights

We celebrated Valentine's Day by a banquet which we gave to the SENIORS and a few of the faculty. The tables were spread in the gymnasium and were decorated with American Beauties, and at each place was a hand-painted card representing old-fashioned girls dressed in the colors of the two classes. An orchestra played while courses were being served, and toasts were responded to by various members of the classes, faculty, and Athletic Association.

The remainder of the spring was marked by only two events of importance. Mr. Moore came to take charge of our science work, and for the rest of the year led us in our wavering course among the members of the Solar System. Our Junior picnic was the "best one yet," for Mr. and Mrs. Rondthaler took us to Oldtown, and we passed an ideal day in walking, wading, and taking pictures.

The crowning moments of our Junior year were those last—the last day of school when we solemnly marched up to the library, where Mr. Rondthaler handed us the grades which we had made in our year's work. Upon receiving these we rushed to where Miss Lou was sitting, and she gave us our long-expected class rings. Then we left the library and flew to the graduating class, making them temporarily relinquish to us their caps and gowns. That was the proudest moment which we had experienced; our year's work was done, we had won the basket-ball championship, and, best of all, we were really SENIORS at last.

When in September we returned, it was with a feeling of importance that we took possession of SENIOR Lodge and began our chapel processions. It was also a source of great pleasure that we now came under the sweet guardianship of Miss Lehman, our class mother, whom we revere next to our own mothers, and the memory of whose tender and watchful love we shall always cherish as one of the sweetest influences of our SENIOR days. We were, moreover, extremely proud of the fact that we were the first class to finish our study of Latin and Physics in our Junior year, and rejoicing in our freedom from these hngbears, we paid no attention to Dr. Rondthaler's cutting remark that now, at last, there was some slight hope of our passing in our work.

Soon after we returned to school we ordered our robes, and then lived in a state of constant anticipation, until the morning of October 13th they actually arrived. Then excitement reigned supreme, and did not decrease until lunch time, when we paraded into the dining-room with a great weight of dignity on our shoulders, and received the applause of the assembled school. That evening we marched out to the campus where a huge bonfire was blazing, and, after singing our class songs, we burned our old hats to the tune of "Polly-Wolly-Doodle" and felt that at last we had come into our full dignity as leaders of the school.

Later in the month the Wake Forest Glee Club gave a concert in Memorial Hall for the benefit of the Annual Fund, and we entertained the club, and also the members of the Carolina and V. P. I. football teams at a reception in the school parlors.

When our team came out on the field for our last basket-ball contest, it was with high hopes on our part that the game began. We defeated the Juniors, our first opponents, easily, but when we came in contact with the doughty Sophs the skies did not look so bright. Our sister class was far ahead at the first half, but in the second our team rallied and marched on to victory, and for the second time the school championship was won.

It seemed a fitting sequel to this glorious event when a few days later Helen Vogler gave a party to the class. We spent a happy afternoon playing Rook, but the moment which stands out most vividly in our recollections was when plates were brought in, on which reposed not only ice-cream and cake in our class colors, but also bunches of violets held by dear little class pins, with our motto in letters of gold. Then we almost raised the roof in our enthusiasm, realizing that we had attained the distinction of being the first class to have both pins and rings.

Not many days after this exciting event we separated for our Christmas holidays, from which we returned, rested and ready for work again. We are now in the thick of the struggle with examinations and essays, but ever growing brighter and brighter in its approach we see before us the gleaming star of Commencement, the goal of all our ambitions.

HERE is a strange custom prevalent among college girls that each year as the graduating class is about to put aside the sweets and sorrows of college life, some member of the class shall produce an inspired prophecy revealing to her classmates the mysteries of their dark and uncertain future. But the victim to perform this Hereulean task is usually chosen without regard to her prophetic abilities, and for this reason it not infrequently happens that the so-called prophet undergoes a state of desperate anxiety in her effort to perform the duty assigned her. Such was the state of affairs with the writer who couldn't even foretell what would be the results of the Senior-Sophomore basket-ball game on Thanksgiving, and yet I have been chosen as "It."

Some one suggested holding one of our famous class meetings. Certainly this was a good suggestion. With such mutual agreement, unanimous decisions as we have always had, no doubt much could have been done to relieve my perplexity. But as PRESIDENT STROWD had not secured the maximum silence which she intended to use on GRISSOM and LAURA RIDENHOUR, the class meeting was postponed.

Another said why not apply to MISS MARGARET BLAIR, who knows it all: of course from this brilliant intellect some light could be gained on the subject. Unfortunately, though, MARGARET had recently suffered a severe accident, and was unable to be of any assistance; as it happened that while gracefully dancing the new fancy dances, she had become entangled in her "tango-slit" evening gown and fallen, hence her indisposition.

However, my suspense was not long. One night, just as I was pondering the hopelessness of the whole situation, suddenly a peculiar voice said:

"Maybe I can help you."

I looked, and there in front of me stood a strong and magnificent figure arrayed in a costume of purple and white. As I gazed, I was greatly astonished at its striking unusualness. I noted that there was about it an air of wholesomeness, originality, genius, and ability to do things; of perseverance, right-mindedness, inexhaustible energy and enthusiasm.

I asked, "Who are you?"

"I am the spirit of old '14. I have been with you on the basket-ball field, in your class singing, in your class work; now I have come to tell you all about the future of the girls of the class, if you want me to help you."

I said, "All right, go ahead and tell all you know of the future of the girls of old '14," and this is what the spirit revealed:

IRENE ADAMS never comes first now, except in the alphabet, but "Oh! for pity's sake." Eventually she will get over being on bad terms with the clock, and become a celebrated genealogist. She will devote her spare moments to writing "The Adventures of the Countess De Gurney," a familiar character whom we have all heard about.

Although MOLLY BROWN made many "marks" at SALEM, yet her career in the outside world will not be so eventful. Naturally, she will have a romantic fate. Her falling in love will finally become chronic, and matrimony will be the result, and this will only go to prove again that cosmetics and false hair are not all in vain.

With the exit of HOPE COOLIDGE, SALEM will lose one of its most valuable landmarks. But this will be only a temporary loss, for after HOPE has specialized in Domestic Science, SALEM will call her again, and she will return to accept a position as "chef" at the "Princess Café." When the Class of 1914 holds its next reunion, HOPE will tender her classmates a complimentary dinner party. Just for old times' sake, the menu will consist of SALEM Specials, Sugar Bread, Chip Beef, Eggs, Hash, and Cherry Smash, and for once in her life RUTH CREDLE will get enough Sugar Bread to satisfy even her.

Judging from her flights into the realms of poetry and romance, one would think that BLANCHE COX would become a second FLORENCE BARCLAY or MYRTLE REED. But in the end the poetry of home-making will appeal to her more than anything else, and at least one of her romances will culminate in a happy marriage.

At your class reunion five years hence, you will be greeted by one who is seemingly a stranger. She will be a tall and graceful brunette, a perfect "clinging vine" type. Just as you are wondering who this intruder may be, you hear her exclaim, "Well, I thought I should croak before I ever reduced it all, but anti-fat did it just the same." And immediately you will recognize this "walking advertisement" to be no other than your old classmate, "RUFUS RAT" CREDLE.

LETTIE CROUCH has very high aspirations to become a school-teacher. In course of time, however, all of that store of knowledge which she has reserved in her psychological chambers will be obliged to have some outlet, and she will compile a modern encyclopedia of valueless information and useless knowledge. She will likewise revise the Century Dictionary.

The interest which ELIZABETH DUNCAN takes in Chemistry and the study of Adams (atoms) would lead one to believe that she would become a chemist; but such will not be the case. An English lord will be attracted by one of ELIZABETH'S irresistible smiles just as it is disappearing behind her left-hind ear. Soon afterwards she will enter the peerage. She will send all of her classmates little souvenir post-cards with views of her elegant estates.

Despite the fact that JACK GRANT and ELIZABETH MCBEE are the very best of friends during their college career, yet in after years they will be great rivals at the first Presidential election after woman suffrage has become national. We will find JACK and ELIZABETH candidates in opposing parties for President of U. S. A., but KATIE EBORN will win the Presidency on an independent ticket. After this JACK and ELIZABETH become friends again. They will develop into great humorists and accept the editorship of Life for the remainder of their lives.

ANNIE LEE GRISSOM, who has the gift of knowing about other people, will develop this talent and become a famous fortune-teller and snake charmer. Her interpretations of the future will save many of her patrons from making the mistakes of their lives. For instance, she will prevent LAURA RIDENHOUR from becoming a grand opera singer. Of course LAURA will agree with "GRISOM," as she always does, and give up her dream of being a prima donna, and lead a life of sweet domesticity. She will be a sweet girl and a great help to her mother.

At present MARY GROGAN thinks she is going to be an artist; but she will finally become so interested in moving-pictures that she will form a partnership with CATHERINE SPACH, and they will run a show together. MARY HORTON will also become a member of the firm, and sell tickets. Of course this will be a great attraction: "The Grogan, Spach and Horton Movies" will be as widely celebrated as any grand opera. In fact, they will become so classical that even SALEM girls will be allowed to attend, at least twice a year.

Immediately following the acquisition of her diploma, LUCY HADLEY will, without any hesitation (?) or deliberation (?) whatsoever, begin her life work, which will be to become a celebrated Christian Scientist. Several times at college LUCY has successfully worked out this theory, even to the extent of regaining a "lost voice." The Class of 1914 may well be proud of her.

This world will be too small a place for LUCY HANES. After traveling extensively she will become "bored" and "blasé" and "sigh for more worlds to conquer." So, discarding her motor for an aeroplane, she will soar away to parts unknown in the ether blue.

Not for "BESS" HYMAN is the monotonous, uneventful life of the South. On the contrary, she will go to New York and there become sole owner and possessor of a "rubber neck." Many innocent sightseers visiting New York for the first time are taken in by her eloquent "Dope." The Art Museum and "The Blue Poodle Dog," "China Town" and "The Statue of Liberty" will be made famous through this one person.

There is one of your class who will have military ambitions with the new era of the equal rights for women. MARDE KERNER will elope and join the navy, or rather be joined by the nearest minister.

The saddest fates of all will be those which befall MATTIE LEE KÖRNER and MARY LOU STROWD. MATTIE LEE will daily become fatter and fatter, and at last die of fatty degeneration of the heart—never of the brain. MARY LOU STROWD, "the sentimentalist," will be disappointed in love and die of a broken heart. Her friends will erect in loving remembrance a tombstone with the following epitaph:

"'Tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all."

MABEL LANCASTER is destined to lead a life of affluence and influence. In spite of the earlier trials of her collegiate career, she will rise triumphant and prove that she is morally, as well as physically, strong. She will become prominent as a leader in all such movements as "Home Missions," "The Y. W. C. A.," and "The Salvation Army." It will indeed be an inspiration to see her leading such a saintly life. How faithfully she will attend all religious services, and she will invariably impress on the minds of her Sunday School pupils "how to behave." Verily, the works of this good woman will live after her.

It is with much regret that I tell of the future of the next, Frivolity. "Frivolity, thy name is VELMA MARTIN." A few short years will see this young woman behind the footlights, an enchantress, an up-to-date vaudeville star.

KATE and CLETUS MASTEN have before them a life of great service. They will become assistant math teachers at their alma mater.

ETHEL REICH will become a feminine agriculturist. She will have a model dairy farm. It will be a familiar sight to see her attired in a becoming sunbonnet and bloomers, disposing of her products in the historic streets of SALEM. ETHEL MCGALLIARD will assist her as dairy maid. It is said that she (ETHEL MCGALLIARD) has a wonderful influence on cows.

ADDIE MCKNIGHT, who has made such eloquent oratorical outbursts in our class meetings, is not destined to end her career here. After leaving SALEM she will enter the political arena and devote her life to the noble (?) cause of woman suffrage. Just as soon as Mrs. Pankhurst learns of ADDIE's advent she will give up in despair and acknowledge ADDIE as the world's champion heavy-weight suffragette. ADDIE will conduct many successful campaigns. These will be made more effective by the presence of MARGARET BLAIR as chaperon. Her reputation as an orator will be unsurpassed. She will revel in the possession of an eloquence so foreible that her auditors will be moved, that is to say, with a desire to fly away. Truly the name of this great celebrity will go down in the annals of history, and her classmates will be proud even of the fact that they once went to school with her and heard her say, "Why are all girls such fools?"

For a good many years after her graduation, CARLOTTA NICHOLSON will lead a very strenuous life. She will make a desperate effort to become beautiful, and, after trying all beauty specialists in America, she will go to Paris, and there, by some newly discovered method, be transformed into "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." On her return she will be attracted by an ad. in the Concord Times: "Wanted.—A wife on application." It will be found that she fills the "bill." The resulting union will be such as we read about, but seldom see.

MARY NICHOLSON will do a great and lasting work for the good of humanity. She will establish a sanatorium for those suffering brain storms resulting from the study of Calculus. The first applicant will be your class prophet. On examination, her case will be found to be not only a brain storm, but absolute insanity. She will be carefully guarded and quickly dispatched to Morganton, and put in a padded cell, at that.

MAY NORMAN and MAMIE WALL will go in training as prospective missionaries to the cannibals. When the cannibals hear of this infliction, they will send a special cablegram to the church authorities, saying, if they will only retain Misses WALL and NORMAN in safe keeping they (the cannibals) will all be converted immediately.

History repeats itself in the case of RUTH PAYNE. "Whithersoever thou goest there will I go" is what she says to "Charlie," and they will live happily ever after.

SUDIE SELF, being prompted by her animated and vivacious spirit and love for the gaieties of life, will go to live in Paris, where she will meet her fate in the form of a French dancing master.

LOUISE SILER will become an able performer on the steam piano, traveling with a circus. Sad to relate, though, during the course of the circus parade in the streets of Salisbury, N. C., LOUISE will become so excited, and put so much feeling into her rendition of "O memories that bless and burn" that she will faint and be carried off the scene of action.

Being inseparable from LOUISE, JULIA CRAWFORD will be a member of the same circus. She is a born humorist, and will have the distinction of being the one and only female clown known in the world's history.

"What Happened to MARY" (TURNER) can be expressed in a few words. She will always sustain the reputation acquired at SALEM as being "the biggest flirt." She will attend a finishing school for a short while, but become "so wise in her own conceits" that no further wisdom will be necessary. She will then become a charming debutante and create an unheard-of sensation in the socialistic circles of New Berne. She will progress this far and no further.

With the resignation of Mrs. STEVENSON, HELEN VOGLER will be given the position of keeping practice turns. HELEN is indeed an efficient musician, as she has proven by her lovely singing in the Processional.

That enthusiastic member of your class, ANNIE HUGHES WILKINSON, is such a devout daughter of SALEM that it will be quite impossible for her to stay away for any length of time. At the reopening of school in September, 1914, she will return to take her place among the faculty, and here she will remain, a typical "SALEM Sister," to the end of her days.

PATTIE WRAY WOMACK will be your class bride. She will become the wife of a civil engineer and go to live in South Africa. She will devote her life to the care of home and husband, and even the natives will love and respect her.

How sweet and gentle! But, alas! how sad will be the life of ELIZABETH WOODWARD, who will be the cherished wife of a young divinity student. How she will be wrapped up in the love of home! How tenderly, when "hubby" comes home, she will greet him and lead him to that frugal meal which she has prepared with her own hands! How energetically she will attend all missionary meetings! How industriously she will send ice-cream cones to the Eskimos and hot dogs to the South Africans! But, alas! for poor "hubby." It will indeed be a most fortunate thing that he will be a godly person, because he will become so convulsed with laughter over one of ELIZABETH'S richest jokes that he can not control himself, but will die in a few short hours. ELIZABETH will then be a merry widow, and can sleep late in the mornings, as she did in "SALEM days."

It has long been a self-evident fact that GLADYS YELVERTON intends to make the study of psychology her life work. Often in class she has appeared so attentive that even our learned professor, Mr. Starr, has been somewhat disconcerted by her presence. GLADYS will become a great writer. Her most remarkable production will be a work entitled "The Psychology of Crnshes." She will accomplish a great work, and her life will be characteristically energetic, and that's all—

With the exception of NELLIE MESSICK, who came to chapel too late even to get into the Class Prophecy.

Farewell to the Class of 1914!

THE PROPHET.

The Ivy

THE IVY is our college magazine, published tri-annually under the editorship of the SENIOR CLASS, with the assistance of the Enterpean and Hesperian Literary Societies.

Since its birth, in 1905, it has developed and increased from the very modest periodical to a magazine of some sixty or seventy pages. It contains short stories, essays, poems, sketches, and all forms of literature found in college magazines.

Formerly, it had a different cover each month, but within the last five years a permanent cover was decided upon, carrying out, with effect, the idea of the name. The effect of the cover design has been so attractive that no succeeding editor has desired to change it.

There has been a great deal of curiosity displayed with regard to the name of our magazine. The explanation offered was that each year the editors, in assuming their responsibility, felt so new and "green" at the work that they thought the ivy, an evergreen plant, a suitable emblem.

In 1898, on the first day of spring, "Ivy Planting" was first observed, this being the day set apart by the SENIOR CLASS for the planting of their class ivy and tree. Since then it has become an annual event of the SENIOR CLASS. And now SALEM's historical walls are covered with this venerable vine, and from constant association with these evergreen leaves we gain inspiration and courage, therefore, it seems fit that we call the magazine of our alma mater after this characteristic plant.

We realize that a monthly periodical is expected of a college with the standing of SALEM, but we wish to explain that the college proper has nothing to do with THE IVY, which increases in strength proportionally to the two literary societies.

Hesperian Literary Society

THE Hesperian Literary Society is now closing its twenty-seventh year, which has proved a most successful one in every way. The old girls and officers came back full of eager enthusiasm for their society. The programs throughout the year have been unusually bright, attractive, and profitable. The attendance and interest of the members have been an encouragement to the leaders.

The first social event of the year was a reception given in honor of the new girls and faculty. Throughout the whole evening an orchestra furnished music from the balcony of Society Hall. This was a delightful occasion for all. Each guest was presented with a lovely "Hesperian" favor, a purple ribbon inscribed with the word "Hesperian" in gold. One of the most enjoyable programs of the year was a "Tacky Party." At this meeting we were glad to have several members of the faculty present, who acted as judges for the "tackiest." Delightful lemon pies were served as refreshments.

The last meeting of the year was a joint meeting of the two societies in the gymnasium. The principal feature of this was a Christmas tree, from which each person received some gift as a souvenir.

Our motto, "Nilamur" (We will strive), has been kept before us. The leaders leave with the leaders of next year their best wishes for everything that is for good in their society.

Euterpean Literary Society

IN this twenty-seventh year of a most successful career, the Euterpean Literary Society has a larger membership than ever before. Many of our old girls returned, and with them we were glad to welcome a large number of new girls, who have proven to be loyal and true Euterpeans.

At the opening of the year a reception was tendered the faculty and entire student body. We were also delighted, a few weeks later, to have the Hesperians with us for the evening.

At our meetings we have enjoyed an unusually good attendance this year; this encouraged the officers very much.

Our motto is "Ad astra per aspera" (To the stars through difficulties), and we truly feel within this year we have come nearer the goal for which we are striving.

We have endeavored to make our society stand for progress and development, so that in after years we may look back on all that we have accomplished with many good wishes for the future works of the E. L. S.

The Y. W. C. A.

IN the year 1914, the Y. W. C. A. has done more influential work in the active life of the college than ever before. The membership comprises one hundred and twenty-five girls, which is more than half the students in the college. The seven committees, Social, Social Service, Membership, Missionary, Religious, Music, and Intercollegiate, organized last spring, have enthusiastically carried on their individual duties.

The Membership Committee, with many of the old girls, returned a few days before the beginning of the fall term to welcome new students, and make them feel they were wanted and needed at SALEM.

The Social Service Committee has been at work this year under Miss Clara Hard, the extension worker in Shamrock Mills, and has brought many happy hours to the mill girls there with a dramatic club and gymnasium class.

At the Christmas season the Association gave a very successful bazaar—selling all kinds of fancy work, contributed by members. The funds realized are to send delegates to the Blue Ridge Conference, summer of 1914.

At the last meeting before the holidays, the Christmas offering was received, consisting of thirteen dollars, and a great big basket of warm, useful clothing, and toys. These were delivered Christmas Eve to a destitute family.

It is the aspiration of the officers of the year 1914 to leave the foundation of a fund toward the future Y. W. C. A. buildings.

A GROUP OF EXPRESSION GIRLS AT PLAY

Salem College Song

I

There is a song we love to sing
 About a friend so true,
 Who proudly marches at the front,
 As she will always do:
 Who long has stood for what is best
 And what is good and true—
 Long may she live, dear old Salem.

CHORUS:

Hurrah! Hurrah! for Salem, staunch and true,
 Hurrah! Hurrah! old Salem, 'tis to you
 We sing our praises loud and long,
 As we will always do—
 Long may she live, dear old Salem.

II

The student, who to Salem comes,
 Has nothing to regret,
 And if she does her duty she
 Will have no cause to fret,
 For when she "grads" at Salem, she
 Will have what all should get—
 Long may she live, dear old Salem.

III

Our Salem girls have long been known
 In many a clime and land,
 And as the years go rolling by,
 The number will expand;
 And at the front there's many a one
 Old Salem's made to stand—
 Long may she live, dear old Salem.

YELLS

Hic, haek, tra, boom.
 Quae, bizzum, yah, zoom.
 Hulla baloo baloria,
 Rah, zoo! Senoria!

S-e-n-i-o-r!
 S-e-n-i-o-r!
 S-e-n-i-o-r!
 Senior! Senior! Senior!

Burning of Hats by Seniors

OCTOBER the thirteenth was "SENIOR DAY" and "Hat Burning" at Salem College. The arrival of the new caps and gowns is always awaited with much eagerness by new SENIORS, and great excitement prevails on the campus when the robes are worn for the first time.

The annual "Hat Burning" ceremonies took place at 6:30. The Class of 1914 introduced several new features, making the ceremony a bit more elaborate than in previous years.

The undergraduates, with the faculty, were grouped on the terrace overlooking the basket-ball field, while the SENIORS formed in line at Annex Hall, with Miss Lehman and President Strowd at the head, the latter carrying a lighted torch.

Proceeding slowly around the darkened campus, the class marched double file down a lane of burning red lights until they reached the field, where they formed a semicircle around a large woodpile, erected in the center.

Led by Miss Edwards, head of the Vocal Department, the class very effectively sang "Alma Mater," and other songs, after which Miss Lehman was called upon for remarks. At the conclusion of her talk, Miss Strowd, president of the class, came forward and applied the torch, while the SENIORS cast their discarded hats on the blaze.

Bishop Rondthaler and President Rondthaler in turn were called upon for speeches, after which the class sang the "Medley" and gave their class yell.

Last Will and Testament

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
Salem College, Winston-Salem
FORSYTHE COUNTY

W, the Class of '14, of the above-named state, county, city, and college, being of sound mind, having arrived at the close of this (college) life, are now ready to depart to realms unknown. Therefore, as a result of these accomplishments, we do herein declare this to be our last will and testament.

First: We appoint E. L. Starr as our executor and ask him to see, first of all, that we get a "Hall of Fame," a resting place.

Second: That we, having passed through the ordeals of homesickness and lovesickness, do hereby bequeath these great virtues to the Junior Class.

Third: We do give all the property we may leave behind us, such as old book backs, scratch pads, ponies, and all kinds of broken furniture, to our executor, to be disposed of by him at public auction.

Fourth: We bequeath our personal property, such as "rats," magic curlers, and French heels, and all other similar paraphernalia as may be found, to the future occupants of SENIOR HOUSE.

Fifth: We bequeath all the faculty ideas concerning new "fads and fancies" to all the future SENIOR classes of Salem College, with the understanding that they regard them as carefully as we have.

Sixth: We, having reached the stage of SENIORHOOD, and having come into possession of our many privileges, do especially bequeath such privileges as chaperoning younger students, drug store visits, moving-picture shows, going to all good plays, and all other such pleasures, to the future classes, provided the rules will be as carefully observed, and carried out as perfectly, as we have done.

Seventh: Whereas several members of our class, having almost fallen victims to Cupid's darts, which has been predicted many times as the cause of an epidemic of lovesickness, we bequeath this one of our chief characteristics to the incoming Junior Class. The antidote for the disease may be found at any of the leading drug stores in the city, if needed.

Eighth: Although we, as a singing (?) class, greatly prize the cat serenaders who sing us to sleep every night, we feel it our duty to bequeath them, especially, to the incoming SENIOR CLASS. We also leave "SENIOR choir" practice period behind to be disposed of as considered best.

Ninth: We, having been classed as the brightest, most original, and most dignified Seniors ever graduated at SALEM, it has been one of our greatest desires to bequeath some of our wisdom to the following classes of this institution. So we leave our knowledge of Latin and Physies in the hands of our executor, to be disposed of as he sees fit.

In witness whereof we have signed, sealed, published, and declared this instrument as our last will and testament at Winston-Salem, North Carolina, on this, the twenty-fifth day of May, nineteen hundred and fourteen.

[Signed] BLANCHE L. COX.

HORRIBLE MURDER OF PROMINENT CITIZEN!!!

BASE ATTACK AND FATAL RESULTS!

On the night of February 8th, Sir Seary William of Hapsburg Hole was foully attacked while on his way to his apartments at the Twin City Club. He had been dining with Madame Monseline Ratskin at Suitcase Hotel, and was reported to have been in splendid spirits and vigorous health. Madame Ratskin says that he left her at her rooms in Bureau Building at 1:00 a. m. At 3:00 a. m. Policeman Woodward discovered him at the head of Wardrobe Alley, mutilated and bleeding—all semblance of his noble countenance demolished. His skull was completely crushed by a stunning blow, and his spine was broken in several places, showing the brutal strength of the assailant. Coroner Brown reports that death was instantaneous. Detective McKnight, aided by a posse of able officers, at last tracked the treacherous villains to their "Den" and dragged them before Judge Strowd at the opening of Court, March 1st. Barrister Payne, lawyer for the defense, plead nobly for the lives of the accused, but from the first the evidence and tide of public sentiment were against them, and after Prosecutor Grisson's flow of splendid oratory the fate of the criminals was sealed, when the jury brought in a verdict of "Guilty of Murder in the First Degree." The perpetrators of this foul deed were J. Grant and E. McBee—two young men of our community, who, as a result of "Tip Top" and other dime novels, had organized a clan on the order of the "Black Hand." This had not been their first appearance before Court, so it was no great surprise when Judge Strowd sentenced them to be shot at sunrise on the morning of March 12th.

Executioners—Siler, Cox, Wilkinson, Lancaster and Crawford.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL RITES

The funeral services of the honorable Sir Seary William were largely attended by his many friends and relatives. The deceased leaves a widowed mother and 26 sisters to mourn the loss of an adored son and brother.

MOLLY BROWN: How shall I prevent talking in my sleep?

Ans.: Smoke a cigarette just before retiring.

C. NICHOLSON: How can I be "cute" at Junior Speaking?

Ans.: Be your natural self—always modest and retiring.

E. M. MCBEE: Where can I procure Middy Blouses cheaper than 39 cents apiece?

Ans.: You can probably purchase same at Miss Jaek Grant's Fire Sale at 21 cents per.

P. W. WOMACK: Does three of a kind beat two pair?

Ans.: If referring to stockings—I should say not!

J. GRANT and C. NICHOLSON: How should one behave when followed by a handsome, young man in an automobile?

Ans.: If the automobile is an "American Underslung," encourage him; if a "Ford," ignore him.

H. VOGLER and L. HADLEY: How can one grow tall?

Ans.: Eat spaghetti and Thyroid glands.

E. DUNCAN: Where can I procure a "Maxim Silencer"?

Ans.: See Professor E. L. Starr.

E. HYMAN: Shall I publish my New York lectures in book form?

Ans.: Not while you can deliver them in person.

H. E. RONDTHALER: How shall I increase the growth of my hair?

Ans.: Apply Gowan's Great Growth Generator.

M. LANCASTER: How should one behave one's self when out shopping alone?

Ans.: Make yourself as cute and attractive as possible to every one.

V. MARTIN: How should a young lady conduct herself when her suitor is calling upon her on a hot summer night?

Ans.: Take your position behind the luminous electrolier on the opposite side of the table from said suitor, and treat him with coy indifference.

SONOROUS SERENADE ON EAST SIDE

Between the witching hours of 2:00 and 3:00 a. m. on January 21st, East Side Senior Annex greatly enjoyed a high-class serenade tendered them by a goodly company of competent feline minstrels. The whole performance was perfectly conducted under the leadership of the Honorable "Booker T. Washington," and his voice was easily distinguished among the others by the splendid resonance and richness of tone displayed. The whole affair was such a surprise to the delighted audience that they were prepared with no bouquets with which to show their appreciation—so it was only with such objects as shoes, hair tonic, cold cream, bottles, hair brushes, curling tongs, and Psychology Text-Books that they were able to reward the sweet singers. In spite of these meagre favors showered upon them, they obligingly returned with "cat"-chy encores until the rising sun reminded them that they must "be up and doing, with a heart for any Fate."

SENIOR ALLOWANCES

The faculty has discovered in the Class of 1914 such an unusual combination of age, dignity, wisdom, breadth of mind, general attractiveness, purity, and beauty, that they have unanimously accorded them the following privileges:

1. Seniors may arise at any hour they wish, and have breakfast served in their own alcoves.

2. Senior Psychology Class is requested to keep books open during recitation.

3. Practice turns may be "cut" at any time by Seniors.

4. The Seniors are given free passes to all moving-picture shows—provided they are used often.

5. Seniors are exempt from all rules on Sunday.

6. Seniors are urged to attend all theaters and high-class vaudevilles.

7. Any Senior may keep eatables in her own alcove.

8. For 10c any Senior may purchase an A. B. Degree and a perfectly new sheepskin.

RECORDER'S COURT

D. Hadley was arrested on charge of vagrancy, pled guilty, and was fined 2 Hershey's.

J. Crawford and H. Vogler answered to charge of boisterous conduct and public disturbance. Sentenced to day-keeping for 10 days.

B. Cox came before the court today under the influence of an intoxicant. Charged with throwing bricks through Mr. Welfare's plate-glass windows. Fined 50 days and costs.

J. Grant and E. McBee were sentenced to be shot at sunrise for the murder of Sir Scary William. Execution postponed, owing to the inability of said parties to rise before 8:30.

Occupants of Senior Annex were brought up on charge of disturbing the public peace in Main Hall. Their acquittal was due to the excellent plea put up by the lawyer for defense, Miss Lehman.

PERSONALS

Dame Rumor says that Mr. I. Adams and Miss G. Yelverton are suffering from "the isness of the as-it-were."

The meetings of the SUM PAPER staff have been rudely disturbed by loud snorings from adjoining rooms. If this continues some change will be necessary.

It is reported that men's tracks have been seen on the campus, but we feel sure that could have been only another schoolgirl's dream.

Miss Maude Kerner is away now on one of her rare visits to Kernersville.

On January 31st, Miss Poppy Coolidge issued invitations to the entire Senior Class to a banquet given in their honor. But this invitation was blamed on Miss Laura Ridenhour, and terrific consequences ensued.

ADVERTISEMENTS

GLORIOUS GLOSSY CURLS!!

DEAR MR. MARCEL: From girlhood I have longed for soft, curly hair like that of my more fortunate companions, and I am now writing to you to express my sincere thanks, for, at last, owing to your wonderful discovery of the Marcel Curlers, I am as charming and curly as heart could wish.

I remain

Your grateful admirer,
MISS J. GRANT.

GIBSON'S GREAT GROWTH GENERATOR!!

MISS E. WOODWARD, of Valdosta, Ga., says:

"When I entered Salem College as a Freshman in the fall of 1901, it was necessary for me to bring with me a great amount of false hair, but I began to use 'G. G. G. G.' and to-day I am the proud possessor of a luxuriant mass of thick, glossy locks. To all such unfortunates it is heartily recommended that they do likewise."

HEALTH OF LOVELY LADY REJUVENATED!!

SAYS MISS LAURA RIDENHOUR, of Concord, N. C. (23 Tin Cup Alley):

"For 25 years I suffered torments with colds in my head and throat, but since using 1 box of Gowan's Pneumonia Cure, I am entirely cured, and have gained 250 pounds. I heartily recommend it to all sufferers from catarrh and other throat affections."

LEADING LITERATURE FOR 1914

A "HISTORY OF THE K Σ FRAT" is the latest addition to literature. This contribution has been gotten up by Miss P. W. Womack, with the assistance of a well-informed friend.

An excellent and praiseworthy guidebook has recently been compiled by Miss Irene Adams. It is entitled "SIGHTSEEING IN BALTIMORE," and will prove invaluable to any strangers in the city.

"MY LADY ON HORSEBACK" is a new and exceedingly instructive article recently produced by Miss Hope Coolidge. This is not the first of her books on this subject, and we feel sure it will be received with the usual enthusiasm and interest.

A perfect literary gem is the little book by Miss Carlotta Nicholson on "HOME-KEEPING HEARTS." It is a delightfully inspiring story of "love in a cottage," and we feel sure that its readers will be strongly influenced and impressed thereby.

The Girl and Her Savings

The average girl little realizes how much the Bank would mean to her if she would only take advantage of its opportunities. It may mean an education, it may mean a trousseau, or it may mean any one of the comforts and luxuries that a little money laid aside can procure. The habit of thrift and saving, when developed in youth, will manifest itself when the girl reaches womanhood and wifehood. It makes her more attractive to the man who chooses her for his mate, and many a marriage has been made a complete success by the simple fact that the wife knew how to save and later taught her husband the useful and helpful lesson.

Salem College girls, wherever they may go, can deposit with this strong bank by mail, with safety, just as more than 18,000 individuals, coming from 31 states, the District of Columbia, Panama, West Indies, China and Brazil, now conduct their business with this strong bank.
